

Kuehne + Nagel Internship Programme

Frequently Asked Questions

What is Kuehne + Nagel's policy regarding internships?

Kuehne + Nagel attaches great importance to internships, as they are a first step in the company's recruitment process. Many current employees began as student interns. Kuehne + Nagel internships are tailor made company individually shapes placements or projects to match a student's needs with the company's requirements.

Who can apply for an internship?

Kuehne + Nagel internships particularly apply to undergraduate students from universities, business schools, or universities of applied sciences.

What are the requirements for undergraduate student interns?

To be accepted as a student intern, first practical work experience, preferably within the transportation and logistics industry, is of advantage. Fluency in English is a must.

How long is an internship, and when does it take place?

As a rule, an internship will last between 4 to 6 months, and may take place at any time.

Does the company provide paid internships?

Kuehne + Nagel compensates expenses caused by the internship through an allowance that covers travelling, housing, etc. The amount of this allowance depends on the host country's cost of living and on whether there is a third party (co-)financing the student's education. In addition, Kuehne + Nagel may pay a performance-related bonus at the end of the internship.

Will Kuehne + Nagel help me to find housing facilities?

It is basically the intern's own responsibility to find adequate accommodation. However, the company will support in providing an address list of accommodation services.

How should I apply, and how does the recruitment process work?

An application should consist of a CV, a cover letter pointing out your motivation, and references of previous employers. The selection process is mainly based on a series of interviews with senior management staff. If you want to apply for an overseas internship, e-mail your application to Corporate Human Resources in Switzerland at campus-recruitment@kuehne-nagel.com.
