Kuehne + Nagel Receives Green Supply Chain Award

Singapore, November 25, 2013 - At the 2013 Supply Chain Asia Awards gala event held in Hong Kong, Kuehne + Nagel was presented the Green Supply Chain Award for the second time.

Kuehne + Nagel has implemented a strong environmental policy which is strictly adhered to along the entire supply chain including all modes of transport and interfaces. Transparent and certified standards are integrated key pillars of the company's QSHE (Quality, Safety & Health, Environment, Security) management systems.

A cornerstone of the company's sustainability initiatives is global implementation of an effective carbon management programme, which sets annual emission targets and focuses on minimising natural resources consumption. A global facility emission database (GFCC: Global Facility Carbon Calculator) is established in order to ensure the quality and reliability of emission data calculations, whilst the Global Transport Carbon Calculator (GTCC) is an important instrument to evaluate, analyse and eventually reduce carbon dioxide emissions during transportation.

"This award proves Kuehne + Nagel's leading role in the efforts to reduce green house emissions. We remain fully committed to our strategic focus of developing and providing supply chain solutions with constantly lower impact on the environment," commented Alfred Hofmann, President of Kuehne + Nagel South Asia Pacific.

Increasing number of Kuehne + Nagel locations in South Asia Pacific have been certified in accordance with ISO 14001. Together with its customers and business partners, Kuehne + Nagel is committed to developing innovative solutions leading to the reduction or neutralisation of green house emissions. On a global scale some 500 specially trained experts are responsible for the implementation of the environment policy and the correct management and evaluation of the data collected by Kuehne + Nagel's developed IT-tools.

Organised annually by Supply Chain Asia, the leading industry event aims to recognise industry players and service providers for their excellence and competence in the logistics and supply chain industry in Asia.
